MinerVue launches game - changing mining and exploration investment tool

Perth, Australia: MinerVue, a newly launched fintech platform, is pleased to announce the official release of its advanced investment and analysis tool for the mining and exploration sector. Designed for investors, brokers, service providers and mining companies, MinerVue combines global geological datasets with detailed financial information to help users identify, benchmark and evaluate, manage and market investment opportunities more efficiently.

MinerVue gives users access to real-time data on more than 750 ASX-listed mining and exploration companies, combined with geological datasets and targeting layers. Designed to support informed decision-making, the platform allows users to quickly define custom groups based on key criteria such as project stage, market cap, location and commodity, then drill down to assess valuation, resource potential and peer positioning on a single platform.

A standout feature of MinerVue is KenexVue, an interactive map powered by 25+ years of global prospectivity modelling from Kenex. This allows users to visualise projects alongside tenement locations, geological features, drill holes, and commodity prospectivity maps helping to uncover underexplored or high-potential areas around the world.

MinerVue users can:

- Quickly filter and search ASX-listed resource companies using customisable criteria
- Rapidly compare market cap and resource data within peer groups
- Visualise geological datasets alongside company projects
- Identify exploration gaps using drill hole data and JORC breakdowns
- Easily benchmark companies to support investment decisions or IR positioning.

“MinerVue rapidly brings together data that’s usually scattered across multiple platforms or not accessible at all and delivers it in one streamlined, easy-to-use platform,” MinerVue Chief Executive Officer Katie Peters said. “Whether you're an ASX-listed company looking to benchmark against peers, or an investor researching your next opportunity, MinerVue puts everything you need in one place.”

The platform will be continuously updated and improved based on user feedback, ensuring it evolves to meet the needs of our customers.

MinerVue is now live and available to both retail and institutional users. MinerVue will showcase the platform at the Gold Coast Gold Conference (15–16 April 2025), with live demonstrations available.
